

Yers and Bodurtha Seized Los Angeles Seek on Plane

Millerton Man Taken Suddenly Ill
Assaulted Officer Relyea in Police Headquarters but Latter Subdued Him Quickly.

A. J. Bodurtha, 28, a dairy inspector for the Borden Farm Produce Company at Millerton, was suddenly taken ill at the Rhinebeck ferry and when removed to police headquarters by Officer Relyea he grasped the officer's revolver and tore it loose from the holster. Before he could do any damage, however, Relyea closed in on him and subdued him.

Dr. Daniel Connelly, city health officer, and Dr. Raymond Crispell of Sahler's Sanitarium later examined the man and found him ill. He was accompanied by his wife and little child and arrangements were made to take him to his wife's relatives at Green, a short distance from Binghamton, by automobile, which was done. Officer Relyea accompanied the family to their destination.

Bodurtha and his family had left Poughkeepsie on Sunday and were driven to Rhinecliff in a taxi. When they arrived on this side the husband said he wanted to use the telephone and called for a State Trooper. Getting no response, he called up police headquarters and Officer Relyea was sent to the ferry house with the police car.

The technical charge of assault that was at first lodged against the man was later withdrawn by the police and he was sent on to his destination with his family.

Sills' Truck Hit New Jersey Boy

The Green Rock, N. J., Record of Thursday, December 22, says:

The latest victim of a car on the borough's busiest thoroughfare is James Vanderbeck, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbeck, of Harristown road, who was hit at the corner of Cumberland road and Maple avenue, yesterday afternoon by a heavy truck, while on his way home from school.

The latter was driven by Harry Sills of Kingston, N. Y., and was on his way to Paterson from the former town when the accident occurred. Sills was taken before Recorder Wadsworth and held in $1,000 bail for the 2nd District Criminal Court for trial January 18, at 7 p. m.

The youngster was taken by a passing motorist to the Barnert Hospital where he is now resting as comfortably as possible. An X-ray is to be taken this afternoon to determine the extent of his injuries, though it is known that he has, at least, suffered a broken collar-bone and numerous bruises and lacerations.

Bond on the charge of assault and battery, preferred by Chief Houlihan, was furnished by Harry Heller, the amusement concession owner of Paterson, for whom Sills was transporting material.

Tentative City Budget Fixes Rate At $40.60

Total Amount To Be Raised by Taxation For State, County and City Purposes is $907,457.33 an Increase of $79,456.67 Over 1927—Public Hearing on Budget Tonight.

The tentative tax budget for 1928 calls for the raising by taxation of $907,457.33, an increase of $79,456.67 over 1927. If the budget is adopted by the incoming council in January it automatically fixes the tax rate at $40.60 per thousand valuation. A public hearing on the proposed budget will be held in the Municipal Building at 7:30 o'clock this evening by Mayor E. J. Dempsey to give interested taxpayers an opportunity to be heard. The 1927 tax budget called for the raising of $828,000.66.

In reference to the public hearing on the budget to be held this evening, Mayor Dempsey has furnished The Freeman with a comparative statement of the budget amounts for 1928 and 1927 which will be found

EARLY MORNING FIRE AT EDDYVILLE CALLED FIREMEN.
Fire, of evident incendiary origin, broke out in one of the old frame buildings of the Consolidated Cement Company at Eddyville of an early hour this morning and the Kingston fire department was called. Fire Chief J. L. Murphy and the pumper from the Central Fire Station responded to the call, but found that the Eddyville fire department had the fire under control. The fire started in the interior of the big frame building and but for the timely discovery and the prompt blizzard, disorganized telephone service and hampered railway and road would have destroyed the building and communicated to adjoining buildings.

Leg Fractured When Hit by Auto Family Stands by Confessed Slayer Of Marian Parker

Vernon Markle Struck Mrs. Dunn
Near Hurley Church Sunday Night
While She Was Returning From Services—Victim Taken to Kingston City Hospital.

Vernon Markle, who conducts the Hurley Hotel, reported Sunday to the sheriff's office that while driving his car from Kingston to his place of business he had struck and injured Mrs. Dunn near the Hurley Church. According to his version of the accident, he had been to Kingston to meet Miss Helen Lynch of Brooklyn and while on his way home in company with his wife and Miss Lynch he struck Mrs. Dunn nearly opposite the church and carried her some 50 feet before she was cleared and dropped from the car. Her leg was fractured and she sustained lacerations of the scalp. Michael Gallagher and James Lacey conveyed the injured woman to the Kingston City Hospital, where her injuries were attended to. He claimed that she was walking along the road in company with several others on her way home from church and stepped in front of the car, when an accident was unavoidable. The accident happened about 9:10 o'clock Sunday evening.

Shortly after, Isaac Roosa appeared at the court house and also gave his version of the accident. Mr. Roosa said he and his wife were walking along the road and slightly ahead of them were Mrs. Dunn and Mrs. Goble. They had all been attending church and were on their way home. They were traveling in the same direction as the car. They had proceeded some 200 feet from the church when he noticed the car approach around a turn. All of the pedestrians were to the right of the road. The car struck Mrs. Dunn and carried her about 50 feet. Mrs. Goble was also struck by the car and stunned when she was thrown to the ground but escaped injuries of a serious nature.

On Sunday Patrick Renaldo was given a jail sentence of 60 days by Judge Clyde Gardner at Saugerties with the alternative of paying a fine of $100, having been found guilty of driving a car while intoxicated. After being brought to the jail he paid the fine and was released from custody. Thomas McDonald is serving ten days in jail, having been found guilty by Judge Gardner on a disorderly conduct charge.

Jail for Driving While Intoxicated

Although the prison coach bristled with guards and the train moved through southern California towns with the least possible delay, cries of anger arose among crowds which had gathered at various stopping places to see the youthful outlaw after the news was spread that he had fully confessed.

Hickman admitted that he alone was responsible for the killing of the little girl and the dissection of the body. It was officially announced last night by District Attorney Keyes of Los Angeles. Keyes and other officers had been grilling Hickman since early yesterday—some hours after leaving Pendleton, Ore., where he was captured. The youth confessed to the kidnapping immediately after his capture but had steadfastly refused to admit that he was the murderer of his little captive.

The confession, details of which were announced by Keyes, declared that Hickman had strangled the girl to death with a towel and cut her body to pieces in a bath tub of his quarters in the Bellevue apartments, Los Angeles, a few hours before delivering the torso to Perry M. Parker, the distracted father, who gave him $1,500 in the hope of having Marian returned alive.

So hideous were parts of the confession that Keyes threatened to withhold some of the details from the public.

Keyes' statement of the details of the confession were, in substance, as follows:

About six months ago, somewhere near the time Hickman was discharged from the bank and put under probation for forging checks, he first thought of kidnapping as a means of making money to spend for a college education. He took an automobile from Dr. Herbert L. Mantz, in Kansas City, at the point of a gun, and eventually drove it to Los Angeles. He rented the apartment November 23 and in the course of a few weeks decided upon the daughter of Parker as his victim.

On December 14 he followed Marian to school and by telling school attendants that her father was injured and was calling for Marian, tricked them into surrendering her. He told Marian she had been kidnapped and that he would take her to her father. The girl begged him not to leave her mother and he refused the bribe but decided to take her to Pasadena and then to the city of Los Angeles. He told her that her father was safe and that she would be restored to her family.

That night he took his little captive to a motion picture theatre in Los Angeles and then to his apartment. They sat under a tree for half an hour and she then followed him to his room as he had instructed her to do. Given the choice of sleeping on the bed or on a couch, she chose the bed. Hickman instructed her first letter to her father, instructing him to obtain $1,500 in $20 bills and await further word. Marian also wrote a note which was inclosed.

Hickman told Marian to a chair and went out and mailed the letter.

164 Deer Were Killed in Ulster

Catskill Mountain Region Furnished 684 of Deer Killed During Hunting Season—Total Kill Was Over 6,000—Nearly Half of Them Taken in Three Counties.

Albany, Dec. 27.—The holders of special licenses to hunt deer in the state during the open season for these animals in 1927 reported taking 1,641 deer, 5,617 of which number were killed in the forest preserve counties of the northern part of the state, 684 in the Catskill counties and 79 in the counties of Rensselaer, Columbia and Dutchess.

This is the first year that hunters were required by law to report direct to the Conservation Department upon the taking of a deer. In the data their reports were the means of supplying answers to many of the questions concerning the deer herd that have been debated.

It would appear from answers made to the questionnaire the department sent to guides, rangers and protectors that many of them are of the opinion that "spike horns," that is, deer not yet in their second year, form the greater part of the kill of these animals each year. This is evidently an erroneous belief. Of the 5,491 deer reported taken, but $58, or less than 1 per cent, were "spike horns." In getting this figure the department treated as "spike horns" all deer reported as having spike horns or as having two points. The average number of points on the horns of the deer reported taken was slightly less than seven.

Little Fear of Depletion.
In view of the average there does not appear to be any grounds for believing that the remedy for any shortage of deer thought by some to exist lies in stopping the taking of deer having horns as short as three inches, the minimum length fixed by law for the taking. A deer, the head of which bears horns having four or more points, has generally passed through at least two breeding seasons. As long as the deer taken continue to average as high as six points to the head, there is little to fear in the way of depletion of the herd from the taking of animals at too early an age.

A belief shared by the greater number of deer hunters which is borne out by the reports is that the greatest number of deer taken are killed during the last week of the open season. In the forest preserve counties of the Adirondack section in the first week of the open season 786 deer were reported killed; 654 were reported killed in the second week; 1,052 in the third week; and in the fourth and last week of the open season 3,125 deer were killed. Of a total kill of 5,647 deer in the northern forest preserve counties over 55 per cent were taken in the last week of the open season.

The Catskill Mountain Kill.
In the counties of Ulster, Sullivan, Delaware, Greene and Orange, in the Catskill region of the state, where the open season for the taking of deer is of but two weeks' duration, there does not appear to be much of a discrepancy in the kill of each week. Of 634 deer reported killed, 325 were taken in the first week of the open season, from November 1 to November 7; and 359 in the second.

In the counties of Rensselaer, Columbia and Dutchess where the open season for deer is from November 1 to November 15, seventy deer were reported taken, 27 in the first week and 43 in the second.

The counties wherein the greatest number of deer were killed were St. Lawrence, with a take of 1,002; Hamilton with a take of 1,307; Herkimer, with a take of 865. There are 22 counties in the state wherein open seasons are fixed by law for the taking of deer. Of a total kill in all counties of 6,401 deer, 3,170 deer, or 49.5 per cent, were reported taken in the three counties here mentioned. Whether the large number of deer reported taken in these counties is to be taken as an indication of the plentifulness of deer in them, or is to be attributed to the congregation of large numbers of hunters in them during the season, cannot at this time be said.

TIMES SQUARE

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press.)

Asbury Park, N. J.—Dr. Edwin Pye Turner Oshaldston, who is 95 years old, wears a white summer suit these chilly days. As birthday exercises he decided to climb a 50-foot railroad signal tower.

New York—Old folks in the main are able to take care of themselves. Of 14,515 persons over 65 years old interviewed in behalf of the National Civic Federation only 29 to 25 per cent were dependent on relatives or charity. While real suffering was found, many of those questioned had ample means.

Turin, Italy—The glad hand is ready for Sylvester Z. Poll, of New Haven, Conn., who recently sold his theatrical interests for $30,000,000. At least 45 nephews and other relatives are ready to welcome the rich uncle in case he should revisit the scenes of his early labors in marble quarries.

Nashville, Tenn.—The modern child is a far better speller than his forefathers, in the opinion of Prof. Frank N. Freeman, of the University of Chicago, as expressed at a meeting of scientists. The reason is modern educational methods.

New York—Whether full advantage was taken of the approach of leap year is not disclosed. At the most elaborate Christmas social affair a huge cluster of mistletoe hung from the central chandelier in the ball room of the Ritz. It was at the debut of Miss Eleanor Post Hutten. There were three orchestras and a clown saxophone band for continuous dancing. If one hesitated because of the mistletoe there was a room for bridge.

New York—Various Broadway notables who struck the street propelled by a flying wedge of waiters are mourning John Dunston, for 32 years the proprietor of Jack's Restaurant. It used to be considered a distinction to start something in his eating and drinking place because of the inevitable sequel.

Jacksonville, Fla.—The latest mode for northerners who prefer summer to winter is to come shopping for houses by airplane. Mrs. Humphrey W. Chadbourne of New York set the style.

Monett, Mo.—A "self-energizing" airplane, on the basis of the first public demonstration, might be regarded as self-exploding. The motor, designed to propel the machine for a take off before "vacuum energy" got to work on the propeller, blew up, injuring the inventor, J. E. Nordlin.

LAKE KATRINE.
Lake Katrine, Dec. 27.—At the meeting of the Grange on Monday evening, the retiring master, Brother Abram Bogert, was presented with a past master's jewel on behalf of the Grange by the worthy chaplain, Brother Wille, who paid a glowing tribute to Brother Bogert's faithfulness for the eight years he has been a member, serving first as chaplain, two and one-half years and as master for five years. Brother Bogert responded briefly, expressing his surprise and appreciation that the Grange had so honored him.

The Xmas program in charge of Mrs. E. Dederick was opened by the Grange members singing "I Heard the Bells." An exercise, "Coming of the King," was presented by the following: Miss Louise Teeter, Miss Terbusch, Miss Pinckney of Mt. Marion, Mrs. Marian Pierson, Mrs. C. Auchmoody, Miss Winifred Shells, Eleanor Wallace, Mrs. Ralph Hummel, Mrs. Ross Heppner, Misses Wilma and Lucy Jones, Misses June and Natalie Hooker, Frances and Susie Weinman, Louise Clark, Sara Boice, Helene Corra and Dorothy Cramer. Miss Mantaranni at the piano. Horton Pierson acted as Santa and distributed gifts.

The Neighborhood Card Club was entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Everett last Saturday evening. Mrs. B. Weynaut and William Shumacker had the honor of winning first prizes and Mrs. William Hooker and William Lux of Richmond Park consolation prizes.

THANK YOU

J. J. NEWBERRY takes this method of expressing appreciation to the many thousands of Kingston and Ulster County folks who made Newberry's their shopping headquarters during the Christmas season. All over the country our organization met with the same wholehearted response on the part of the shopping public—a response to our nation-wide policy of standard high-grade merchandise, sold at a minimum profit margin, but in tremendous volume and with unfailing courtesy of service.

And A Happy New Year

We wish you all a very Happy New Year, filled to the brim with blessings large and small. During 1928 our organization is pledged to draw even closer the many new friends made in 1927.

FEW things bring greater pleasure than old photographs among old friends.

PICTURES of the babies, of the children romping with their beloved pets, of vacation days, of automobile trips and of never-to-be-forgotten walks along pleasant paths—how they open wide the flood-gates of memory.

WE wouldn't take thousands of dollars for these records. They are life—little spots of color in a work-a-day world.

YET back of these priceless records is a thing we do not often consider when we become sentimental or reminiscent. It is this business of advertising.

ADVERTISING in the early days showed us the possibilities of amateur photography. It showed us the ease of taking and making pictures. It took us outdoors. It developed our appreciation of the beautiful in nature.

AND the power of advertising so reduced the cost of manufacturing the materials of amateur photography that today there are few people who do not own a camera, few people who do not record pictorially their red-letter days.

NOWADAYS advertising is telling us of the possibilities of motion pictures for the amateur—a development that fills us all with delightful anticipation.

ADVERTISING will bring this, too, within our grasp.

ADVERTISING is news about things. Advertising is a guide to real value. Advertising, through the service it has rendered, has earned for itself its right to be, and its worthiness of your attention.

Family Stands by Confessed Slayer

He returned and prepared breakfast but the girl did not eat. Hickman then engaged her in conversation and told her she might write another letter to her father. She was in tears, but stopped crying when allowed to write the second note.

The abductor then left the apartment a second time and returned with newspapers telling the story of the kidnapping. Together they read the papers.

That afternoon Hickman took the girl for a ride of 70 miles but returned about dark, bringing more newspapers filled with stories of the case. The confession then told how he had telephoned Parker and arranged for a rendezvous but how he had failed to keep it because the police had been allowed to take a hand.

Back in the apartment Marian sobbed because she could not return home that night. Again she slept on the couch and awakened the next morning—the day of her death—at 7:30.

Again Hickman told her to write a note to her father. This time she was allowed to use her own words except that she was instructed to make it appear she was being treated badly.

Hickman then promised to allow her to return home if her father did not pay the money demanded. He wrote another note chiding the father for allowing the police to interfere, and threatened death to Marian.

Once more Marian was bound and a blindfold was added. As he left the apartment she pleaded with him to hurry back.

The confession here declares Hickman then got the idea of killing Marian. He had told the girl "too much" about himself—that he formerly was employed at the bank and that her father knew him. He realized if she returned alive she would tell this and he would be a marked man.

Kills The Child.
 He took a dish towel and twisted it around her neck, holding it tightly for two minutes before she became unconscious. With his pocket knife he dismembered the body. The arms and legs he wrapped in paper. He then combed the girl's hair, powdered her face and threaded wire through the eyelids in an effort to keep the eyes open.

After finishing the gruesome work he wrote the final letter to Parker giving him his "last chance" to have his daughter returned alive. Then alone he went to a theatre.

When the hour for the rendezvous with Parker neared, he placed the torso in a suitcase and drove to the meeting place. Ascertaining there were no police near, he met Parker, took the $1,500 at the point of a gun, and then dropped the body a few feet ahead of the father's automobile.

Immediately he drove to a cafe and passed the first of the $20 for a dinner. He returned home and slept. The next morning the police swarmed into his apartment, having traced a piece of towel which had been put with the body. He blandly watched them search the apartment for possible clues, and inquired if he could help them. Then he strolled out and went to a theatre. Afterward he went to Hollywood boulevard and took a big green automobile from its owner at pistol point.

With the green automobile he headed for San Francisco. He remained at a hotel there until the morning his name appeared as the man wanted. Then he headed for the north, where the trail of $20 gold certificates finally led to his capture.

Hickman declared an uncontrollable desire to kill had surged within him since childhood. On the day of the killing, Marian became fretful, he said, and he concluded that the time had come to put her to death.

Willing to Pay Penalty.
 Hickman was said to have told Keyes that he would be willing to plead guilty to murder and kidnap-and would accept imposition of the death penalty without delay. He seemingly had adopted an attitude of indifference after unburdening himself under the winning fire of questions by Keyes, Chief of Detectives Herman Chize and others.

The youth showed no spirit as he was led out to face crowds and cameras. Shackled to a big detective, he was so broken as the journey neared its end that he could not hold up his head.

The confession disposed finally of the mythical "Andrew Cramer" whom he named in his first admissions as the person who actually killed the girl. In his new story of the crime he admitted that Cramer had existed only in his mind.

Flappers Succumb to Lure of Camel Riding
 Morocco means camels and sheiks to the wheels of American schoolgirls who invade the country each autumn chartered by Paris finishing school teachers. Marrakech sees most of them, because they find the herds there which make camel rides possible. No debutante considers her tour complete until she has been camel riding. Sheiks are harder to find, the type being a product of the desert interiors.

The schoolgirls visit Morocco early in the fall, at the Christmas holiday or late in the spring. Marrakech the Red, under the shadows of the high Atlas, is the only city where camels in numbers may be obtained, and so the girls do most of their camel riding there. Only the freight-carrying type of animal is available. There are no swift "ships of the desert" for the young tourists. But that does not detract from the enjoyment of the flappers, to whom any camel is a camel.—London Daily Mail.

Reading Against Time
 Not an American Idea
 We are pleased and proud to report one innovation in which we anticipated the Americans. Time is so very precious in the States that they can't afford to waste five minutes of it in planning out the day's work and pleasure. So an enterprising magazine publisher has begun to print, at the head of every story or article, the time which an average reader will take to get through it.

But an English clergyman was beforehand with the notion. In order to induce his flock to a more diligent perusal of the Bible, he gave, in the exordium to a sermon, the length of time taken to read the various gospels and epistles. Thus Mark can be read in an hour and a half, Matthew in two hours and a half, etc. The effect on his congregation is not recorded. We suspect a rush to study Paul's letter to Philomene.—Manchester Guardian.

Couldn't Fool Him
 A party of men left Devon to spend a week in London.
 When they arrived in the capital they were surprised to see so many people in the streets, and stood in the doorway of a chemist's shop, surveying the scene.

Presently the chemist came up and asked if there was anything he could get them.
 "No," said one; "we're waiting until the crowd has passed by."
 "Crowd?" echoed the chemist. "There are just as many people here every day."
 "Rubbish!" retorted the Devonian. "Because there's ten of us up from Exeter this morning.—London Answer.

First Use of Periscope

"Know the Worth"

Money spent in cultivating tastes rather than in impressing tasteless people ought to bring us all better returns, and does, if we would only recognize it. But we are so impatient. We won't wait for anything to grow if we can force into being a semblance of what it should be. The few who demand real value for their money are swamped by the many who are satisfied in spending. It is, perhaps, natural that a hard-earned fortune should vaunt itself, even in this way, but it is neither sensible nor the mark of a fine character. The motto we recommend to influence in general is: "Know the Worth."—Vogue.

Taken at His Word

"Good-by," he said brokenly, and his frame shook with emotion. "Remember, dear, that even if I can't win your love I shall always be your devoted friend."
 The girl blushed.
 "And," continued the heart-broken youth, "if ever I can be of service to you, you have only to command me. I leave for Egypt tonight."
 "I am awfully sorry," remarked the girl, "to have been the cause of your leaving home, but since you are so kind, please mail this letter for me on your way to the boat."

Student of Farm Life

Margie had often seen cows in the pasture and had had the process of supply and demand, as pertaining to dairy products, explained to her by her mother. However, personal contact with the gentler species of the cow had not been her privilege. On a recent visit to the farm, she was taken to the barn just at milking time.
 On her return to the house her mother asked her what she saw in the barnyard, expecting her to list the different animals.
 Her reply came: "Well, mother, I saw them squirt the cow."

THE DARKER TONES NOW INTRODUCED IN SPORTS COSTUMES MAKE THEM MORE ADAPTABLE TO TOWN WEAR—SUSPENDERS RETURN WITH THE TUCK-IN BLOUSE

Paris—it is something of a bro-mide to say that sports clothes were never more important than at the present time, yet surely it is also the truth. In all collections, they were the dominant thought. What is more, one finds gray woolen sports dresses revealed at teas and luncheons, when fur or fur-trimmed coats are removed.

The fact that the new note in sports wear tends toward grays and dark colors naturally is perhaps responsible for their being worn in town. Also the fact that Rodier's so-called sweater fabrics, often quite elaborate in design, may be made to measure has given the sweater idea a greater impetus.

In thinking over the really important style messages to flash from Paris, messages concerned only with sports wear, it seems that, next to the new range of coloring mentioned, the sports ensemble that includes a sleeveless coat is of greatest interest. The sleeveless idea is practical, for the obvious reason that a double set of woolen sleeves would be an encumbrance. The skirt and sweater costume with sleeveless jacket is very smart and at the same time very practical.

Of course, all reports have men- tioned bells, but perhaps the re-ap- pearing idea.

In one instance, one central sus- pender, front and back, replaces the more usual brace idea. Skirts are actually held up in this way, as well as appearing to be for the waistline is invariably loose, and the blouse worn underneath, which is in itself a style note. It is unimportant, how- ever, except as related to the sus- pender idea.

New Hebrides

A Patriarch of New Hebrides.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

FRANCE and Great Britain have a strange partnership in the administration of the New Hebrides Islands, which lie in the Pacific ocean about a thousand miles east of Australia. For a long time the islands were not formally under the control of any European country. But both British and French commercial activities were growing, especially the latter, owing to the proximity of France's territory, New Caledonia.

Neither power could obtain the agreement of the other to the annexation of the New Hebrides, so the problem was solved at least temporarily in 1878 by the joint declaration of France and Great Britain that the territory should be neutral. This agreement did not work very well, and in 1906 a protocol was entered into stating that the islands should become "a region of joint influence" by Great Britain and France, with separate administrations for the nationals of each, and a joint administration toward the natives. People of all other nationalities must choose or "opt" whether they are to be under British or French jurisdiction.

So today the islands have a queer "scrambled" government not very satisfactory to either the French or British trading companies, the plantation owners, the missionaries, or the natives. There is a British high commissioner and a French high commissioner in the islands; separate British and French police forces; and a joint court presided over by a Briton, a Frenchman, and a third judge selected by the king of Spain.

Both languages are official, but neither is very useful in dealing with the natives. For the New Hebrides natives are still savages. They believe in witchcraft and all sorts of signs and omens, particularly in the spirits of their departed ancestors and in gods which are thought to be incorporated in certain stones or animals. Every village has its dancing ground. Here the natives meet on moonlight nights and perform wild and fantastic antics to the booming of their deep drums, some of which, six feet or more in height and carved from the trunks of trees, are capable of making terrible noises.

What the Natives Are Like.

For years the natives of the islands were the prey of the "Blackbirders," or labor pirates, because they are generally considered more industrious and sturdier of build than the average Kanaka. They are reputed to have cannibalistic tendencies, to be treacherous and of uncertain temper, facts probably due in some measure to the treatment to which they were subjected by these traders. They are Melanesian stock, below the medium in stature, and accentuate the ugliness in their broad black faces and receding foreheads by sticking coconut fiber in their hair and adorning their ears and flat noses with rings. They pride themselves upon their weapons—spears, clubs, bows, and poisoned arrows—some of which are beautiful in design and elaborate pattern.

The women in general hold a degraded position. The wives of the more important men increase the number of the skirts which they wear at one time as an indication of their rank. The "pooh-hah's" wife wears as many as 40. The "better half" of a man is sometimes buried alive with her husband upon his death.

Quiros, the Portuguese navigator, in 1606, was the first white man to see the rugged outline of the coast of the islands, which rise abruptly out of the deep sea in the hurricane zone of the tropics. Believing he had discovered the great southern continent which was at that time the dream of navigators, Quiros may be compared to Columbus, who thought he had found a route to India when he sighted the palm-fringed shores of the West Indies.

He called his discovery Australia del Espíritu Santo, which has been shortened by traders to Santo and is applied to the largest island of the group. Some of the other large mountains and partly volcanic islands are Ambrym, Annatani, Aurora, Apl. Penteocost, Eromanga, Mallicollo and Tanna, the home of the "great light-house" of the southern isles. Tanna volcano, which bursts forth brilliantly every three or four minutes.

Santo a Fertile Island. Countless streams cut Santo, which is 64 miles long and 32 miles wide, into broad, fertile valleys. From its shores and those of the neighboring islands tons of copra are sent to Sydney, Australia, and to New Caledonia and shipped from there to soap makers the world over. Coffee, cocoa and vanilla, as well as tropical fruits, grow in abundance. Oranges are said to grow so large that both a man's hands can scarcely span one of them, and the pineapples of the islands sometimes weigh 20 pounds. So rich is the soil and luxuriant the vegetation that in many places 5,000 sheep can be kept on 2,000 acres of land.

Vila harbor or Vila, which is set between mountain peaks and gneomed with islands, is the most important commercially among the many commodious and strategic harbors which the islands afford. The scattered little villages which dozes under the shelter of its palm trees has built no pier to encourage its shipping. The cargoes must be loaded by the natives in small boats. Though the progress of conquering nations has left its mark in the Catholic and Presbyterian churches, the large wireless station and certain administrative buildings, the town is essentially native in character with its thatched-roof houses set amid the colorful hibiscus blossoms, and sometimes fortified with stone walls.

One of the oddest customs among the New Hebrideans is the molding of their heads into a pointed, sugar loaf-like shape. The process must begin in infancy, and not all heads are so treated. But the possession of a pointed head is looked upon as a great asset among the natives. A woman with such a misshapen head can marry a chief, whereas her more naturally shaped sister must be content with a commoner for a husband.

The pointed shape is brought about by winding strong fiber cord about the heads of babies. From time to time these cords are drawn tighter. The babies so bound seem continually restless and in pain.

What the future of the islands is to be is a problem. British residents in the South seas, including the Australians and New Zealanders, are anxious to have France's governmental interest taken over by Great Britain or by one of the southern dominions acting for her. Most of the British nationals in the islands are Australians or New Zealanders. The British planters are not permitted to bring in coolie labor from India or elsewhere; but there is no such restriction on the French, who have introduced several thousand Tongkinese coolies.

Japanese Crowding In.

Then there is the problem of Japanese immigration. They have come in large numbers, and the British see growing up a parallel situation to that in New Caledonia where there are more than 6,000 Japanese, and where they have a strong hold on the business activities of the islands, including the famous nickel mines there. The Australians fear that if the New Hebrides should pass entirely under French control, they might later fall into Japanese hands.

The French themselves greatly outnumber the British, and there are perhaps ten French trading ships busy in the islands to one British. In Vila, the capital, the French population outnumbers the British eight to one.

There have been a number of conferences between France and Great Britain at which an effort has been made to place the New Hebrides under a single jurisdiction. Representatives of Australia and New Zealand proposed either that Great Britain take a mandate over the islands, that the French debt to Britain be cancelled in exchange for France's interests, or that British African territory be traded to France for the New Hebrides. But France not unnaturally proposed that the British lower their flag and leave the French in possession.

Queen of Precious Stones

It is estimated by an authority that the diamond represents fully four or five times the value of other gems found, including precious and semi-precious. India was the original home of the diamond as a jewel. For centuries India remained the sole source of Europe's diamond supply. About 1730 diamonds were discovered in Brazil. In 1867 diamonds were discovered in South Africa. South African diamonds constitute more than 90 per cent of the world's supply. From their discovery to the present time they have yielded 30,000,000 carats. The diamonds of the world probably represent a value of $5,000,000,000.

MILTON.

Milton, Dec. 27.—Three cases of scarlet fever have developed here. Lawrence Lawton, Tunis Leroy and Fannie Leers. The children are getting along as well as can be expected.

On account of the scarlet fever cases the Christmas exercises of the Methodist Sunday school were not held, but presents were given to the children Saturday evening. The Sunday school will be closed for two weeks. The Rev. J. H. Hurns' Bible Class met as usual Sunday morning.

Midnight Mass was celebrated at St. James Church Saturday night. Services were held at the church Monday at 11 a. m.

Walter Clarke and several other fruit growers have filled large

Christmas orders from firms, employees and friends all over the country.

The annual Christmas supper of the Presbyterian Church and Sunday school will be given at the church parlors Wednesday evening, December 28.

Communion services were conducted at All Saints' Church Sunday morning. There was no vesper service held, however.

Lawrence Lawton, who has been ill with scarlet fever, is getting along fine. The scarlet fever cases have turned out to be very mild ones.

The week of prayer service has been arranged instead.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Goehring spent the holiday at the home of Mrs. W. A. Goehring on Sands avenue.

The Misses Lois and Ruth Taber and brothers, Kenneth and Sidney, spent the holiday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Birdsall Taber.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Townsend were holiday guests at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. H. A. Northacker at Elmhurst, L. I.

Miss Catherine Howard of District School, No. 1, will spend the holiday at her home in North Bangor.

A Christmas service was held at the Presbyterian Church Sunday. The Rev. Frank Marvin of Poughkeepsie officiated. The following pro-

The Power Behind Daily Newspaper Advertising

ADVERTISING is of no value and is in fact not advertising without a medium to carry the sales story to prospective buyers. So advertising depends for its effectiveness and productiveness on the power and acceptance of the medium used.

The daily newspapers of New York State, outside of New York City, offer to advertisers a tremendous amount of potential direct contact power which is illustrated by the complete and wasteless distribution of these newspapers in the individual markets of the state—1,531,466 newspapers are read daily by 1,175,288 families.

This general reading and acceptance of these New York State Newspapers is due to the fact that these newspapers bring to their readers every day that which they want most—NEWS, News which is first information, news that changes and establishes standards of living, news that molds public opinion—such is the power of the newspaper.

This power is accessible to advertisers—at a cost which insures profitable returns, to carry their message to one-tenth of the population of the United States all located in a closely knit territory, economical of access.

The cost is always of vital interest to every advertiser, costs of selling are problems in competitive markets. A campaign of 5,000 lines, 20 insertions of 250-line copy, or 50 insertions of 100-line copy can be used in every one of these newspapers at a total cost for the entire campaign of less than 2½¢ per family reached.

The Advertising Bureau, NEW YORK STATE PUBLISHERS, has available a wealth of unbiased and non-competitive information concerning each of the markets covered by these newspapers which is available to any advertiser interested in maximum returns from his advertising. We are equipped also to furnish any special information. Ask this newspaper or write Advertising Bureau, 709 Charlotte Street, Utica, N. Y.

Highest Quality of Mind
An enlightened mind is not hoodwinked; it is not shut up in a gloomy prison. It thinks the walls of its own dungeon the limits of the universe, and the reach of its own chain the outer verge of intelligence.

Greenness and Vitamin A Related

Vitamin is More Likely to be Present in Green Part of Edible Plants Than Other Parts, Say Experimenters.

Nashville, Dec. 27 (AP).—That the all important vitamin A is more likely to be present in the green part of an edible plant than in other parts was indicated in a paper read today at a session meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Dr. John W. Crist, associate professor of horticulture, and Dr. Marie Dye, associate professor of home economics at Michigan State College, who presented a paper last year on an investigation of the vitamin A content of leaf and head lettuce, described a combination of their study with asparagus in their new paper.

Experimenting with albino rats, they found no direct evidence that the green coloring matter in the plant was the vitamin itself, but they did observe what appeared to be a "positive correlation between the degree of greenness in edible plant parts and their content of vitamin A."

"Green asparagus, whether fresh, freshly cooked or canned," they said, when fed daily at the rate of 0.1 gram per animal, contained vitamin A in quantity sufficient to promote normal health and growth in albino rats. Bleached asparagus, whether fresh or freshly cooked, when fed to rats at the rate of 0.1 gram per animal gave little if any stimulus to health and growth, the fresh product being less effective than the freshly cooked. Animals fed canned bleached asparagus at the rate of 0.2 gram daily were no better off as good as the negative control."

A woman sent the society editor an announcement of her daughter's engagement. An hour later the daughter called up in evident agitation, to ask if it were too late to correct one of the details. "Mother made a dreadful mistake. I can't understand how it happened," she said. "I am a plumber." "And isn't your father a plumber?" "Certainly not. My father is a domestic sanitary engineer."

"Pa."
"Yes, my son."
"What's a flapper?"
"A flapper, my son, is a woman who does what an old man would like to do and hasn't the constitution to stand it."

City Boy—"And did you hatch all these chickens yourself?"
Country Boy—"Oh, no, we have hens that do that."

A negro minister discovered two of his parishioners playing cards on a Sunday—and for money, too.
"Rastus," said the minister, "don't you know it's wrong to play cards on the Sabbath?"
"Yes, parson," answered Rastus, "but believe me, ah's paying for mah sins."

"What happy people you are to have six nice daughters! What resources for your old age!"
"Yes, Resources enough! But the difficulty nowadays consists in husbanding one's resources!"

Brown: Are you wrapped up in your business?
Jones: "No, indeed. I make my paper."

When a man has a rip in his pants and three buttons on his vest, he should do one of two things—either get married or get a divorce.

When you've grown up with a business you're done your share; you don't have to go to seed with it.

If you want to test your memory, try to remember the things that worried you yesterday.

JUST HUMANS
By GENE CARR

"THAT BIRD NEVER THINKS OF THE FUTURE."
"NO, HE'S TOO BUSY THINKING OF THE PAST!"

Mother's Cook Book

We have not fulfilled every duty unless we have fulfilled that of being pleasant.

SEASONABLE FOODS

THERE is no vegetable nicer than well-baked Hubbard squash. It is one of the best of the season.

Squash Souffle.
Take two cups of mashed cooked squash, add gradually one cup of cream; when well mixed add two well-beaten egg yolks, seasoning to taste, then fold in the stiffly beaten whites and bake in a moderate oven in a well-buttered pan.

Ice Box Rolls.

Dissolve two compressed yeast cakes in one-fourth of a cupful of water. To two cups of boiling water add four tablespoons of sweetened condensed milk and one-half cup of sugar and one tablespoon of salt. When cool add two beaten eggs and the yeast with four cups of flour, mix and beat well and add two more cups of flour, stirring well with a spoon until well mixed. Do not knead. Set away in the ice box, well covered. Three hours before the rolls are needed, take out bits of the dough; it will be hard to handle but grease the fingers well and handle quickly, using very little flour. Make into flat buns, leaving plenty of room to rise and spread. Cover well with melted lard; this keeps them moist and the tops from forming a crust and the rolls rise better. Bake in a hot oven; if properly made they will be as light and delicate as angel food.

Chili Con Carne.

Take one and one-half pounds of fresh lean pork with some fat, one and one-half pounds of round steak, all put through a meat grinder. Brown three good-sized sliced onions, add the meat, a dried chili pepper, two quarts of tomato, two or three tablespoons of chili powder with salt and pepper to season. Simmer for three hours, then add two cans kidney beans and cook another half hour. Serve hot.

Curry of Rabbit.

Cut up the rabbit as for fricasse, brown well, add two medium-sized onions chopped and two tablespoons of curry powder. Cook 15 minutes in a little fat, add a very little water, cover and cook until the rabbit is tender. More water may be added to keep the meat from burning, but only a tablespoonful at a time.

Grated fresh horseradish mixed with a little salt and lemon juice and thick cream added makes a delicious sauce to serve with steak or fish.

GRUGG.

"Probably it's Kipling were describing the habits of the species today," says Observing Olivia. "He'd call them 'A howling, two-toned and a cow-bell'."

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT
By F. A. WALKER

WHAT WILL YOU LEAVE?

WHAT will you leave when you die?

That is not an inquiry into your financial condition. The inventory of the little pile of dollars, or the big pile, as the case may be, will be of only passing interest. A matter of a few taxes and some regrets that you had not been more saving.

The dollars that you leave will soon be scattered and probably spent not at all as you would have spent them and if you could send a message from where you hope you are going you would probably pay few compliments to those who will be distributing what you collected.

What are you going to leave besides money?

Are you going to leave a pleasant memory?

Are those who stay here for a little while after you are gone going to speak kindly of you?

Are they going to recite good deeds that you did and kind words that you spoke?

Are they going to say: "I miss Jim because he always said 'Good morning' as if he hoped it would be a good morning for everybody?"

Or are they going to say: "Well, we're rid of the champion grouch of the world. Hope he finds something to suit him in the next place."

Are you going to leave anything accomplished that is worth while?

Have you done something or are you doing something that will benefit and help others after you have started on your last journey?

There must be a great satisfaction to a man dying if he can say as did President John Quincy Adams: "This is the last of earth! I am content."

No man should be content unless there shall remain behind him something worth while. What he leaves is an index of how he lived.

One of the most important gifts mentioned in the Bible is a cup of cold water.

One of the world's great acts of charity was the giving of the widow's mite.

If Dives had had a little of the spirit of love and charity in his soul he would not have been so distressed when he saw Lazarus in glory.

Have you ever offered a cup of cold water to one who needed? Then you have the promise that you "shall in no wise lose your reward." And a part of that reward will be that long after you have forgotten the act it will be remembered by another.

Have you been charitable, as the widow was charitable and in the same proportion? Then be sure you are leaving something behind you more substantial than a monument.

Life is only made up of accomplishments. If it ends without our having done anything except for ourselves we have lived uselessly and unprofitably.

The man who leaves only wealth behind him has done no better than the insect that leaves his store of food. Both will shortly disappear and cease to be even a memory.

The only real storehouse, the only real place to leave a memorial of yourself is in the hearts and minds of your fellow men.

Then, there is neither rust nor moth nor decay. Leave wisdom if you can. Leave example. Leave a memory of right achievement and honest endeavor. Leave something worth while to those who follow you and creditable to yourself.

No man can die too poor to do that.

Stores May Rival Steel Corporation

Edward A. Filene, Famous Merchant, Formerly Department Store Chains Rivaling General Motors or U. S. Steel in Size.

Washington, D.C., Dec. 27.—Chains of department stores comparable in size to the General Motors Company and the United States Steel Corporation will be a development of the near future according to Edward A. Filene, one of America's best known merchants, who read a paper on "The Present Status and Future Prospects of Chains of Department Stores" before the Marketing Division of the American Economic Association today.

Such a chain will operate fifty to a hundred large department stores in cities from coast to coast and do a business of a billion dollars a year. Each department of each store, Mr. Filene says, will itself be a unit in a chain of similar departments. In this way the advantages of chain stores will be combined with the advantages of department stores.

If the department stores do not get together to form such chains, the existing chains will combine to form department stores and occupy department store buildings. Then the existing department stores will be hard pressed, according to Mr. Filene.

Mr. Filene says that although production costs are constantly being reduced, the spread between the manufacturing cost of an article and what the consumer pays for it is greater today than it was 40 years ago. This is not due to excessive profits of the department stores. Their net profits are reasonably small.

It is due largely to preventable waste, which, according to Mr. Filene, will be conquered in large part by properly organized chains of department stores. The savings will largely be passed on to the consumer in lower prices thus increasing the prosperity of the people. Mr. Filene sees as a result of such betterments a higher standard of living both in America and Europe and this will be a great influence for universal and permanent peace.

Europe, according to him, is studying American methods of mass production and mass distribution and adopting them as rapidly as she can. When the people of Europe are as prosperous as we are in America, war will be unlikely. "Prosperous and contented neighbors," he says, "do not lightly go to war with each other."

Wearing Stairs

Stairways do not wear down at the same rate on both sides, according to a builder. The right side, going up, wears down most, he says, because people walking upstairs do so with more effort (and consequent wear on the step) than those coming down. This is especially noticeable in stairways of soft marble where the right side often will be notched deeply, while steps on the left hardly are scratched.

Soft, Indeed

"She is so simple," says a fiction writer in the Woman's Home Companion, "that you could stick a car's tail right through her head without bending it."

Dance at Ruby.

The Lan-Pow Social Club will give a benefit dance at the Ruby Hotel at Ruby tonight.

LAST NIGHT on the RADIO

Excellent reception all day Monday was followed by rather poor reception in the evening. This was a repetition of Sunday's conditions. A Saturday night feature was the Gully Jumpers' Band, playing at WSM.

"Heavy Made a Lady Out of Little" is the latest high class musical effort heard on the radio.

Listeners learned a lot about tea, bacon and corns from the advertising programs Monday evening.

Did anyone keep a tally of the number of times he heard "Holy Night" and "Jingle Bells" during the past few days? The championship winner is in doubt.

WGN gave Handel's "Messiah" Sunday night and it was heard much more clearly than the programs of the local stations, all of which seemed to have laryngitis. WOC, WTAM, WRC, WEAF, WGY, WLW and WEEI were equally good in the Crossley program and were all very good indeed. Later everything went bad.

Only Took 62 Years for Him to Get His Congressional Medal of Honor

After 62 years of waiting, Charles F. Hopkins, of Boonton, N. J., has finally received the Congressional Medal of Honor that he earned for conspicuous gallantry under fire during the Civil War.

However, don't blame the Government for the delay.

Mr. Hopkins could have had the medal, as well as the citation for distinguished bravery, 62 years ago. But he's a mighty modest man and was reluctant to apply personally for the honor.

The Hopkins couple were married right after Charles was mustered out of the Union Army, and they're celebrating their sixty-first wedding anniversary in January.

Xmas Eve and Day At T. B. Hospital

This year the celebration of Christmas began at the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital with a carol service on Christmas Eve. At that time the Schubert Choral Club of the Y. W. C. A. foregathered about the beautifully lighted Christmas tree that stands on the grounds in front of the hospital, and in the crisp winter night, with stars at their brightest the girls sang the Christmas carols best loved by all. It was a service especially appreciated by the patients and turned all hearts to the true harmony of the peaceful Christmas message.

On Christmas Day afternoon the Children of Mary and young men from St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church visited the hospital, taking Santa Claus with them. There being Santa Claus, of course there was a gift for each patient, also fifty cents for each patient sent to them by the American Legion, and then a short but appreciated entertainment, including violin and piano numbers, and other musical and reading selections.

This was followed by a Christmas service conducted by the Rev. William Poyntell Kemper, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, who was accompanied by some of the choir boys of the church and a group of Girls' Friendly Society girls and Mrs. Reed, who announced the usual Christmas entertainment with gifts from the people of Kingston to be held at the hospital on Thursday evening of this week. Dr. Raymond Crispell, superintendent of the hospital, and his mother were also present.

The service, held just at sunset, was set amongst the "overlasting hills," glowing in the rosy light of the departing day, and was opened with one of the Christmas gifts to the hospital, an Associated Glee Club record of the Adeste Fideles, sung by twenty-five hundred men, accompanied by the great Sesquicentennial organ and pianos, as a sort of prelude. Carols were sung by the boys and girls from St. John's Church; Rector Kemper gave a beautiful and helpful message of the Christ-child and the Place all may make for Him in themselves today, thus becoming Christ-men and women, boys and girls to those about them. A few beautiful prayers, the singing of another Christmas hymn, and the pronouncing of the benediction, brought the inspiring and helpful service to a close. Those thus visiting the hospital were taken up there by the courtesy and generosity of the rector, Joseph Bennett, Arthur McGinnis and Lewen F. Searle whose automobiles were used.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH ACTIVITIES THIS WEEK.

The Bible School of the First Baptist Church on Albany avenue will hold its Christmas entertainment on Wednesday evening, December 28, at 7:30 o'clock. There will be a varied and interesting program which will include a play entitled, "The Van Dorn's Christmas Tree" under the direction of Mrs. Harry Klotz. There will be a Christmas tree, and a visit from Santa Claus is expected.

On Thursday evening, at 7:30 the prayer and covenant meeting of the church will be held, and at 7:15 o'clock, before the prayer meeting, the pastor and deacons will meet any who desire to unite with the church.

The services next Sunday, on the first day of the New Year, will be of a specially impressive character, emphasizing the consecration of self to the larger tasks of life.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Dec. 27 (AP).—Movements in today's stock market lacked uniformity, but the main trend appeared to be upward, with General Motors and U. S. Steel coming in the vanguard of the advance.

Buyers of steel common was disappointed, in part, by the widespread reports that J. P. Morgan would be named chairman of the board of directors of the corporation at the regular monthly meeting late this afternoon. Favorable steel trade reports also were a factor.

Fred H. Smith, a well known resident of Milton, dropped dead in Rick-born's store in that village last Friday evening. He was postmaster of Milton during the Wilson administration and president of the board of education for years. He was an appraiser for the New York city board of water supply in the Ashokan condemnation proceedings. In November he was elected justice of the peace for the full term. He had Peatland Timothy Is Inferior to AlfalfaTests Made in St. Paul to Determine Value of Feeds.

Peatland timothy hay has been shown, by careful feeding tests at the Minnesota Agricultural experiment station, to be superior to upland timothy hay. Chemical analyses have shown that the protein content of peatland timothy is 10.60 per cent, whereas that of upland timothy is 6.20 per cent. Still peatland timothy falls short of alfalfa as a feed for young steers.

To determine the relative values of the two forage crops the animal husbandry division of the central station, University farm, St. Paul, started a feeding test on three groups of steers of ten each. One was full fed on shelled corn and alfalfa hay, another on shelled corn and peatland timothy, and another on shelled corn and peatland timothy, with two pounds of linseed meal a day added. It was found, at the end of 110 days, that the margin per steer over feed cost on shelled corn and alfalfa hay was $22.41; on the shelled corn and peatland timothy, $17.24, and on shelled corn, linseed meal and peatland timothy, $23.59. It took the added linseed meal to bring the peatland timothy up to the level of alfalfa. The return per bushel of shelled corn in the first group was $1.33, and in the second group $1.16, and in the third $1.43.

Dairy Cattle Need but Few Minerals

Farmers who buy complex mineral mixtures to feed their stock usually pay a price for salt and limestone that is six or eight times their value, and at the time they get a lot of other substances in the mixture that may not only be unnecessary, but may be positively harmful, according to the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca.

Most mineral mixtures or proprietary mineral mixtures, as they are called, contain a variety of substances that dairy cattle do not need at all, because calcium or lime, phosphorus, salt, and iodine are the only minerals that are commonly needed.

The college says, "probably eight in ten cases of lack of minerals are due to lack of calcium, and this can be furnished by ground limestone which costs one-half a cent a pound. A mineral mixture which will supply calcium and phosphorus, where both are needed, consists of equal amounts of steam bone meal and limestone with some salt. If the mixture is fed separately from the grain, bone meal is much more expensive than limestone, so bone meal or phosphorus should not be fed unless stock will benefit from it."

Deadly Enemies of All Young Poultry on Farm

The hawk usually carries off the young chicks. If they attack larger ones they leave the bodies, and it will be found dead due to a wound in the back of the neck, the skull torn open, and the feathers (if the carcass has been devoured so that the skull evidence is not available) are widely scattered around but not trailed.

Should the chicken be found lying dead on its side, with its neck stretched out and a small wound in the throat, it is the work of a weasel that has sucked its life blood.

If a carcass is found with the head and breast devoured, it is the work of a cat.

The rat, as a rule, does its deadly work at night, and the carcass is often found very badly mauled. The entrails are generally drawn out but not eaten, and the carcass is bitten and gnawed in many places.

Agricultural Facts

Labor saved is money saved.

A profitable orchard is one which is pruned, sprayed and cultivated.

The farmer who sows clean seed will reap, but the farmer who sows foul seed will weep.

Keep in touch with your state college of agriculture for new and promising plant varieties.

On old land it is recommended to spread the lime on top after it is plowed and disk it in so it is well mixed with the soil.

Don't cut off the low limbs on young apple trees, for they bear one-third to half the fruit right where it can be picked without a ladder.

Equal parts of steam bone meal and limestone is the best mineral mixture to supply phosphorus and calcium to cattle, and these two are usually all that is needed.

Previously held that office for several terms. Judge Smith was a member of the Episcopal Church and had resided in Milton his entire life. He is survived by a son, Granville, and a daughter, Ellen of Woodcliffe, N. J. He was always active in advancing Milton's interests, and was held in high esteem by all who knew him. Funeral services were held this morning at 11 o'clock in the home of Mrs. Mary Crook, a sister-in-law, with whom he made his home. Interment was in the Milton Methodist cemetery.

14 Deaths From Alcoholism

New York, Dec. 27 (AP).—Fourteen deaths from alcoholism since Friday were reported by police today, while 65 persons are receiving treatment in the alcoholic wards of the city hospital.

Hospital officials said this number is not abnormal and that the majority of cases are due to the drinking of excessive quantities of liquor rather than wood alcohol.

K. of C. Not Seeking Funds

Officers of the local Knights of Columbus were notified today that young men have been soliciting funds for orphanages, stating they had been authorized to receive money by the Knights of Columbus. Local residents stated young men were very insistent and extremely offensive. The Knights of Columbus are not soliciting funds for any cause and have authorized no one to solicit funds in their name for any purpose. The proper procedure should be to notify the police, who will place the culprits under arrest.

Parents and friends of members of the school are cordially invited to attend the entertainment.

Scherer's Garage and Auto Burned in Fire

This morning about 1:50 o'clock as Fred Stout was passing the frame two-car garage of Joseph Scherer in Connelly, he discovered it was on fire to which the South Rondout fire department responded and within ten minutes had two streams on the fire. The garage, which was recently erected, was located next door to the engine house. In it was housed Mr. Scherer's truck, which was saved, and his Overland Whippet sedan, which was destroyed. The garage was burned to the ground.

Bethany Mission Xmas Tree

The annual Christmas tree and entertainment will be held this evening at 7:30 o'clock at Bethany Chapel by the Bethany Sunday school.

Gus Radell's Face Burned

Gus Radell, the well-known retail milk dealer of Stephan street, was quite badly burned about the face and eyes early this morning while delivering milk on Pine Grove avenue. Owing to the cold weather he had placed a liberal supply of alcohol in the tank with the water, but the mixture proved too strong for when he removed the top it flew up, striking him in the face. Fortunately he promptly closed his eyes, which saved his vision, but he was badly burned about the eyelids and other parts of his face. Later in the day it was reported that he was able to be around and expected to resume work Wednesday.

FIRE DEPARTMENT CALLED OUT FOR SEVERAL FIRES

Saturday afternoon the fire department was called out on a still alarm of fire to the home of Burr Callahan at 25 1/2 Green street. A can of varnish had been placed on a stove and had ignited. The damage was slight.

Monday afternoon the department was called out for a grass fire on Andrew street.

Monday evening sparks from a fireplace in the home of Charles Kershaw at Richmond Park, just outside the city limits, set fire to the woodwork in the room. The firemen extinguished the blaze and the damage was slight.

J. A. HEPPWORTH RECOVERING SLOWLY FROM ACCIDENT

Milton, Dec. 27.—William R. Ordway received word last week from his sister, Mrs. J. A. Heppworth, that her husband, who was severely injured in an auto accident at Miami, Florida, was doing as well as could be expected. His leg has been put in a plaster cast and it will be all of two months before he will be able to get around again. He is taken in a rolling chair out on the front porch of the hospital every day for an hour or two.

SPOTLIGHT TURNS WITH CAR WHEEL

Spotlights are especially handy to illuminate many corners, but they are rather inconvenient to handle late at used in many corners. The device often does not turn where it should and the light is of little or no help

SAFE RULES ON WINTER DRIVING

No Danger in Operating Car on Ice and Snow If Judg-

As children—and as fanciful—as the "buggy man" of their childhood is the winter driving dream which co-sears many motorists. But operating an automobile on ice and snow can be made comparatively safe, if one is willing to observe a few rules.
One of the first things to remember in winter driving is not to drive as fast as you are accustomed to drive in fair weather. You can readily see, with ice and snow under the wheels,
you cannot stop your car as quickly as on dry pavement or gravel, even though the wheels are fitted with chains and the brakes are in good working order. Fast driving is the cause of most winter accidents.

Safety Hints.
The cause of many a mishap is the attempt to get the wheels out of an ice rut when the car is traveling at a fast pace. To do this is obviously dangerous. The safe way to get out of a rut is to stop the car first. Not only is this safe, but it saves your tires from being cut and bruised by the sharp ice.

Driving down a slippery grade is a problem that bothers many motorists.
When doing this, do not disengage the clutch. Keep the brake on and shift into first or second speed. Don't set the rear wheels when you stop, because this makes it easy for you to lose control of the car.

If you skid, turn the wheels in the same direction in which the skid occurs, but never, under any circumstances, turn the wheels clear over.
If you do this, you may check the force of the skid so suddenly that the car is thrown over.

Humble Winter Aids.
If you are unable to get traction, a few old burlap bags, or a box of sand and some rope may be useful in setting you going again, when you are caught in a snow bank, or are attempting to back out of a parking place when the pavement slants towards the curb.

Don't be afraid to drive in winter.
Don't be reckless, but, on the other hand, don't be overtimid. Enjoy the confidence that you have done, and are doing, everything possible to make winter driving safe.

Wear Shows Defects of Car by Rumbling Noise

One of the best ways to decide which is the better of two forms of engineering design for an automobile is to find out what happens to each when they start to give trouble. This is illustrated clearly in the matter of universal joints where every car buyer is given the choice of purchasing a car with fabric joints or the more generally used metal joints.
The chief difficulty with the metal type is that it becomes noisy when it starts to wear. There is considerable rattling, and the amount of work involved in replacing such joints sometimes is considerable. In the case of the fabric type it is found that when it becomes too flexible as a result of constant bending and deterioration of the fabric it tends to throw the drive line or propeller shaft out of alignment. At certain speeds there is a considerable amount of whipping, which results in an objectionable rumbling noise in the car.

One Valuable Lesson in Driving in Car Tracks

Many motorists, who have learned the valuable lesson that driving in the street car tracks results in unnecessary tire wear, still find themselves indulging in this practice when trying to get ahead in the traffic stream. When caught in such a predicament, there is a way of coming out with the least amount of grinding the tires against the rails. Give the steering wheel a quick twist instead of gradually forcing the wheels out of the track. The same tip applies when driving in a rut. It means a saving of tire side-wall wear.

To Set Magneto

To set a high-tension magneto, the proper cylinder should be brought to firing position, both valves closed and the piston at the top of its stroke.
This may be ascertained by running a stout wire through a spark plug or petcock opening. When the piston is in this position the motor must be backed one-eighth of a stroke, at which position the spark should occur when the lever is fully advanced.

Tire Conservation Does Not Mean Big Repairing

Shabby tires on a good looking car yet stand on any street corner today and remind the motorist of patched-up, disputed tires which are being used to the last mile. The cost of keeping tires in good condition for a few thousand miles would nearly pay for new ones. Mileage such as this comes fast.

Tire conservation does not mean picking up a scrap of tire and putting it back into service at a big repair shop just to save a little rubber left in the tread. It means taking care of the tire from the first so that it will be able to deliver all the mileage built into it by the maker. When tires are so far worn that they are sent to the shop, it is poor economy to repair them. Such a course means the sacrifice of the inner tube as well.

Clean, make-shift patches, boots and temporary repairs of all kinds are now being called into use, as never before, but patching up an old casing in which separation of fabric piles has already begun, cannot give the freedom from tire trouble on which the pleasure in motoring so largely depends.

REFLECTOR SHOWS OIL INDICATOR

Light Is Thrown on Gauge Giving Amount on Hand.

When the oil supply of an auto engine is diminished to the point where the pump fails, the burning out of the connecting rods or the scoring of the cylinders is almost certain to result.
The dash oil indicator is visible in the day, but at night many drivers are unaware of the oil supply due to lack of illumination. To safeguard the car by being able to read the oil

Reflector to illuminate the Oil Indicator on the Auto Instrument Board.

Indicator at night, a small dash lamp can be mounted directly over the gauge, duplicating the dash light over the speedometer. A simpler method, however, is to mount a small mirror on one side of the oil indicator, as shown in the illustration. The mirror, set in a sheet-metal holder, is fastened to the dash at such an angle as to direct the light from the dash lamp directly onto the indicator.—

Reason Why Rear Tires Are Oftenest Punctured

The fact that the rear tires are punctured oftener than the forward ones often has puzzled motorists. An explanation of this phenomenon recently was found when a tire test car was run over a large piece of an automobile spring. As the front tire ran over the metal it left it balanced in such a position as to receive the full driving force of the rear wheel.
The spring was driven through the tire and the steel rim of the wheel down to the hub of the wheel.

This explanation also accounts for the reason that the rear tires will pick up nails and other objects over which the front tires have run and which they have left in a position easily to be picked up.

You May Park on 28th Floor in This Garage

A skyscraper garage 28 stories high with a capacity for more than 1,000 autos is being planned in New York.
The new garage, probably will be the most modern structure of its kind in the world.
Laundries for cars, chauffeurs' rooms, waiting rooms and several compartments where owners may make minor repairs will be included in the new building.
New devices for parking and cleaning cars will be regulated in such a way as to insure against scraped tenders or greasy upholstery. High speed, self leveling elevators will be used to park the cars.
